TS utility is beyond comparison with any other farming implement now in use. It takes the seed from the field, I implement now in use. It takes the seed from the field, leaving the straw or grass all standing. It weighs two hundred and fifty pounds, is drawn by one horse, and gathers from ten to twelve acres per day. The fingers, or teeth, catch all the heads, the revolving knives cut them off and throw them back into the box, which will cross a twenty-acre field without emptying. The heads are then loaded into a wagon and taken directly to the mill for cleaning, thus diminishing the labor three-fourths, and saving all the seed. This machine comes so low that every farmer will have it, and pays the manufacturer 300 per cent.

E. WHEELER, Agent for Washington.

CROSS KEYS, WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP, CAMDEN CO., N. J., ? We, the undersigned, do certify that we have seen Mr. Krauser's Patent Clover Harvester in operation, and it has given perfect satisfaction. It has gathered many of the farmers' clover in this neighborhood—it is all that Mr. Krauser and his bills represent it to be. The farmers have given one-half for gathering and threshing.

This is to certify that Mr. G. J. Naylor has gathered clover off of a sixteen-acre field of mine, which has been pastured two months with ten head of cattle, and it produced six bushels and a half and one peck of seed. I gave him two-thirds for gathering and cleaning. I think his machine is first-rate, and answers all the purpose that is intended.

The following points out the profitable Haryester:

KRAUSER'S PATENT CLOVER-SEED HARVESTER.—
We have conversed with a number of Farmers, and they are of opinion that there are at least 3,000 acres in each township in Camden or Gloucester county, New Jersey. Adulting there are but 1,000, it is said that each acre will yield from 1½ to 3 bushels. Reducing it to a certainty of yielding but 1 bushel per acre, what will it cost to gather and thresh 1,000 acres?

DOMESTIC PICKLES!

Whig National Convention!

FRIDAY-EVENING SESSION. Mr. Ashmun, from the Committee on the Platform, presented the following report, which was adopted by the committee with nearly, though not quite, unanimous approval:

THE PLATFORM. The Whigs of the United States, in Convention assembled, adhering to the great conservative republican principles by which they are controlled and governed, and now, as ever, relying upon the intelligence of the American people, with an abiding confidence in their capacity for self-government and their devotion to the continued constitution and the Union, proclaim the following as political sentiments and determinations, for the establishment and maintenance of which their national organization as a party is effected:

1. The government of the United States is of a limited character, and it is confined to the exercise of powers expressly granted by the constitution, and such as may be necessary and proper for carrying the granted powers into full execu-tion; and that all powers not thus granted or necessarily implied are expressly reserved to the States, respectively, and to the people.

2. The State governments should be held secure in their reserved rights, and the general government sustained in its constitutional powers, and the Union should be revered and watched over as "the palladium of our liberties."

That while struggling freedom, everywhere, enlists the warmest sympathy of the Whig party, we still adhere to the doctrines of the Father of his Country, as announced in his Farewell Address, of keeping ourselves free from all entangling alliances with foreign countries, and of never quitting our own to stand upon foreign ground. That our mission as a republic is not to propagate our opinions, or impose on other countries our form of government, by artifice or force but to teach by example, and show by our success, moderation, and justice, the blessings of self-government and the advantages of free institutions.

4. That where the people make and control the Government, they should obey its constitution, laws, and treaties, as they would retain their selfrespect and the respect which they claim and will enforce from foreign powers.

5. Government should be conducted on principles of strictest economy, and revenue, sufficient for the expenses thereof, in time of peace, ought to be derived from a duty on imposts, and not from direct taxes; and in laying such duties, sound policy requires a just discrimination, whereby suitable encouragement may be afforded to American industry, equally to all classes and to all portions of the country.

6. The constitution vests in Congress the power to open and repair harbors, and it is expedient that Congress should exercise its power to remove obstructions from navigable rivers, whenever such improvements are necessary for the common defence, and for the protection and facility of commerce with foreign nations or among the States; said improvements being, in every instance, national and general in their character.

7. The federal and State governments are parts of one system, alike necessary for the common prosperity, peace, and security, and ought to be regarded alike with a cordial, habitual and immovable attachment. Respect for the authority of each, and acquiescence in the constitutional measures of each, are duties required by the plainest consideration of national, of State, and of individual welfare.

8. That the series of acts of the 31st Congress, the act known as the fugitive slave law included, are received and acquiesced in by the Whig party of the United States, as a settlement, in princi-ple and substance, of the dangerous and exciting questions which they embrace; and so far as they are concerned, we will maintain them, and insist upon their strict enforcement, until time and experience shall demonstrate the necessity of further legislation, to guard against the evasion of the laws on the one hand, and the abuse of their powers on the other-not impairing their present efficiency: and we deprecate all further agitation of the questions thus settled, as dangerous to our peace, and will discountenance all efforts to continue or renew such agitation, whenever, wherever, or however, the attempt may be made and we will maintain this system as essential to the nationality of the Whig party and the integrity

Mr. Rufus Choate, of Massachusetts, spoke in eloquent terms in support of this platform. Mr. Charles Anderson, of Ohio, a friend of the Compromise measures, and of compromise in the Convention, spoke in opposition to the adoption of the platform.

Mr. Botts, of Virginia, made some remarks, which we find reported in the Sun. As he is grossly misrepresented in the editorial columns of the Republic of to-day, we will quote what was

Mr. Botts did not rise to discuss the platform, for every word of that, if it suited the Terms of gathering, on shares of one-half; which would leave from the above calculation in the hands of the gatherer 500 bushels. Selling it at $5 per bushel would be $2,500; deducting expenses, $500, would leave a balance in the hands of the gatherer of $2,000.

Torm, for every word of that, if it suited the Convention, suited him. [Applause.] He came here as a national Whig, disposed and intending to support whoever should be the nominee of the the hands of the gatherer of $2,000. Convention. [Applause] He had no prejudices against any of the candidates named; for either ultiply the $2,000 by 5 would be $10,000.

We believe the above calculation to be indisputable. From of them would be an honor to any party, and of which any party might be proud.

He had listened to the gentleman from Massachusetts with pleasure and delight, so long as he spoke of patriotism and nationality; but with what pain had he listened to him when speaking of no pledges, but letters in breeches pockets!

He was sorry, and he intended no offence to the gentleman, to hear him make such a low fling at any one. [Applause.] Where are those letters said to be in the breeches pockets in this Convention ?

Mr. Davis, of Florida: One is in the posses sion of one of your colleagues. [Applause.]
Mr. Botts said he called upon the gentleman from Massachusetts to answer him, and the gentleman from Florida, who this morning offered a resolution here to support no one who was not sound on the Compromise, answered him. I have the letter here, and I will read it.

A voice: Read all of it. Mr. Botts: Yes, I will read all of it-from the date to the signature. I will read it to put down a calumny. I want to satisfy the people of the United States, and particularly the Whig party. for President. He rose to move the previous United States, and particularly the Whig party, that the soldier and civilian, the patriot and statesman, has not sent private letters here to a delegate from Virginia to influence the Convention. [Applause.] I will read the letter; and if there be any one else here with a letter, let him produce it. It appears now that General Whoever did not stand to Scott, who had a letter in every breeches pocket not stand by his country. of the Convention, has, in fact, but one letter and that is in my coat pocket.

A voice: "That has been smoked out. There were cries of "Read the letter.

Mr. Botts said he would begin with the date and end with the signature. [Voices: "Let the secretary read it—he has a fine voice."] Mr. Botts: No! I prefer to read it myself.
[A voice: "That's right:" and cries of "Read,"

read '] I want to satisfy, not only this Con vention, but the whole American people, and the Whig party of the United States-[huzzas]that the distinguished man, soldier, and civilian, is not liable to the imputation of sending letter: to gentlemen to be kept in their breeches pocket l ask any gentleman, if he has a letter in his breeches pocket, to produce it. But there seems to be but one breeches pocket, and that happens to be my coat pocket. [Excessive laughter, and a "It has been smoked out."] I repeat, this letter was written to my colleague [W. S. Archer] on last Tuesday night. It is as follows

"My Dear Sir: I have decided to write nothing to the Convention." [Cries of "Good!"]
Mr. Botts: Yes, sir, he would not purchase a BARRELS PICKLES; put up in domestic style, ready for table, a superior sritele, for sale by the hundred, by W. C. HARPER & CO.,

I will continue the reading, as follows: "Or to any individual member, before nomination; but should that honor fall to my lot, I shall, in my acceptance, give my views on the the Compromise measures in terms at least as strong in their favor as those I read to you two days since." Voices: "Read on; read, read." Mr. Botts continued: "Please say as much to my friends, Gov. Jones, Mr. Botts, Mr. Lee, etc.,

"In haste, yours truly, Winfield Scott."
"To Hon. W. S. Archer."

This was succeeded by laughter. Mr. Botts: Gentlemen, don't laugh too soon ; have not done yet.

A Voice: What! another letter? Mr. Botts: I propose to read the resolutions referred to in the letter.
Mr. Colvin inquired whether the letter of Gen.

Scott says anything about the fugitive slave law. Mr. Botts: I believe Gen. Scott makes reference to the slavery question, if that has any connexion with the fugitive slave law. [Laughter, and cries of "Good!"]
Mr. Botts then read the resolutions adopted by the New Jersey Whig State convention, declaring for the generally avowed principles of the party, and resolving: That the Whigs of New Jersey are now, and always have been, devoted sincerely and unreservedly to the constitution in all its parts; that we avow ourselves bound by and earnest to fulfil all its requirements; that we are equally bound to a cheerful and loyal obedience to the laws; that we respect now and always the reserved rights of all the States; that we have been always and are now opposed to the agitation of sectional questions, and are especially averse to the renewal of all discussion on the subject of slavery, or the agitation of any measures having reference thereto.

[This was warmly and loudly applauded.] Mr. A. G. Hazard inquired: Are you reading what Scott said, or what somebody else said Laughter. 1

Mr. Botts: I read the paper to show what was the precise nature of the resolutions to which Gen. Scott makes reference. Voices: "It won't do." Mr. Smith, of Alabama, asked a question, to

Mr. Archer replied that he had been a friend and classmate of Gen. Scott at the time he was thirteen years of age, and that General Scott had learned from his own lips that he was in favor of the re-election of Mr. Fillmore. [Cheers.] He denied, most emphatically, that there had been and complained of the imputation. Mr. Smith said his question was simply this : Was it not understood between you that the letter should be used if Gen. Scott's friends should think it expedient? If not, why was it shown to members of the Convention?

Mr. Archer again denied that such an under-any collusion between himself and General Scott, standing existed, and stated that the gentleman had ungenerously charged a collusion. Mr. Dayton said that after the meeting of the New Jersey Whig convention, which passed those liberal resolutions on the subject of slavery, he announced that fact to General Scott. He (Dayton) stated in the letter that he had no wish to draw him into a correspondence, but, if he desired to make a communication to the New Jersey delegation, he would be willing to receive it. No answer has been received, [applause,] and no member of the delegation has ever seen a letter from General Scott on the subject. Mr. Botts: I am happy to hear the distin guished representative from New Jersey say that e has no private letters in his breeches pocket.

[Laughter.] Mr. Cabell asked if there was not another letter; but his voice was drowned in cries of "Order," and the greatest confusion prevailed.

Mr. Botts said he could not answer the question, as he had no such letter in his breeches pocket, [laughter and cheers:] and that if it falls to the lot of Gen. Scott to have the honor of a nomination, the gentleman will have an opportunity of knowing what Gen. Scott is for and against. And he asked Mr. Cabell this question: "Is it or has it been your purpose to vote for Scott, on any letter or platform?" A Voice: "That question is out of order." [Ap lause. Mr. Cabell: I have stated in private and public, everywhere, that under no conceivable state of the case will I vote for a man who repudiates principles dear to me. [Applause.]

Mr. Botts concluded his speech, when Mr. Choate replied to certain remarks directed by Mr. Botts against him, taking occasion to eulogize Daniel Webster as the author of the Compromise measures. Mr. Botts, with no disrespect for Mr. Webster, said that Mr. Clay was the author of the Compromise measures; and this was received with ild applause. After points of order, and many stirring scenes which time will not permit us to narrate, the vote was taken on the platform resolutions; which were adopted by a vote of yeas 227, nays 66, as YEAS-Maine, 4: New Hampshire, 5: Massachusetts, 13; Rhode Island, 4; Connecticut, 4; New York, 12: New Jersey, 7; Pennsylvania, 21; Delaware, 3; Maryland, 8; Virginia, 15; North Carolina, 10; South Carolina, 8; Georgia, 10; Alabama, 9; Mississippi, 7; Louisiana, 6; Ohio, 8: Kentucky, 12: Tennessee, 12; Indiana, 7

Loud, long, and startling were the expressions of applause.

Jessup moved a resolution that this Con vention do now proceed to vote for a candidate for President of the United States.

Hon. J. C. Jones, of Tennssee, here delivered an elequent and patriotic address, which we will nereafter publish. Mr. Bryon, of South Carolina, got the floor, but yielded it to Governor Johnston, of Pennsylvania, who said he was a Union man, and felt satisfied that while all were gratified at the speeches they had heard, question, but would have to surrender the floor to the gentleman from South Carolina. Mr. Bryon appealed to his brother Whigs of all parts of the Union to stand firm and sure by the Compromise. Country was greater than party. Whoever did not stand by the Compromise did

The whole number of votes to which the States are entitled is 296-necessary to a choice, 149. The highest vote cast above, however, was 294, on the first ballot; on each of the succeeding ballots it was 293, which would make 147 necessary to a choice.

Illinois on the first five ballots had voted for Scott, but on the sixth the delegate from the seventh district said he would no longer misrepre sent his constituents, and voted for Millard Fillmore. Mr. Washburn said the delegates from Illinois had been instructed to vote in such manner as the majority might determine, and therefore they had voted as a unit. After debate and confusion, it was decided the delegate had a right to vote as arose and insisted on his right to vote. The Chair said that by a portion of the report of the Committee on Credentials, which was adopted by the Convention this morning, Mr. Raymond was recognised as a co-delegate of the gentleman-the two to cast the vote of the district when they could agree.

Another delegate from that State then voted for Mr. Fillmore. When New York was called, Mr. Richardson

Between the votes, as above, several motions to adjourn were made and voted down, and there were cries for another, and yet another vote, until, at quarter past nine o'clock, an adjournment took place until ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

Whig National Convention!

Hall of the American Institute. BALTIMORE, June 19-94 a. m. There is some misunderstanding about the hour to which the Convention adjourned. Some supposed it was to meet this morning at nine. The papers publish ten. Nothing will probably be done before ten. It is now nine o'clock and thirty-five minutes. The Convention meets at ten. The indications are that Scott will be nominated. Tennessee will probably soon go over for Scott.

[Second Despatch.]

104 a. m .- President Chapman called the Convention to order at ten o'clock. Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Morris. The thermometer stands at ninety. Awful hot!

The galleries are filled with ladies, and all parts of the hall are crowded to excess. The journal was read and approved.

[Third Despatch.]

It is now 11 o'clock, and the balloting has ommenced.

Seventh ballot .- Webster, 28; Fillmore, 133; Scott, 131. New York cast one vote for Mr. Bates, of Mis-
